The doors have been broken, the glass has been shattered, and the prisoners have been released!

There was a changing of the guard in Hayfield room 212. Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to THE REVOLT, your new newspaper!

Gone are the days of mundane topics, tyrannical rule, clip art, and apologies. Welcome to the age of the Whatever Generation. The term coined to mock us for our attitudes will now be our battle cry. We will do whatever it takes to spark change in a world too corrupt to continue as it is.

THE REVOLT aims to be a megaphone for the students of this university. We will seek out touchy subjects instead of avoiding them, we will challenge authority (in a very peaceful and respectful way), and we will do our best to shed light on the dark recesses of society (no—we do not know what that means). We will also occasionally give out free ice cream and brand new cars to our valued readers!

To further articulate our mission, let us consult Webster’s dictionary.

To revolt means to cast off allegiance or subjection to those in authority. We rebel against those whose authority is self proclaimed, self adored, and just plain selfish.

In noun form, a revolt is an expression or movement of spirited protest. The group of us who have joined to form a movement are participating in a spirited protest against Harry Potter, crooked lines, and bad writing.

We acknowledge the fact that we are nowhere near as revolutionary as the historical figures pictured above, but we also realize that George Washington was not always President of the United States. He was, at one time, only a guy with a wig and wooden teeth, talking about change with other wig wearers.

As the nature of revolution is controversial, we hope to spark debate, raise a few eyebrows, roll a few eyes, and open a few mouths.

So grab your figurative torch and pitchfork, ignore the lie about giving away brand new cars, and join us in the written revolution that is THE REVOLT.

He Knows When You Are Sleeping
(He Knows When You’re Awake)

Jennifer Shubilla Addresses the Creepier Side of Facebook

Facebook is a wonderful tool to catch up with friends and family you don’t get the chance to see very often. It’s also a great venue to share pictures and news, to network, and to promote upcoming events. I understand the appeal of Facebook for all these reasons, and also because it provides me mindless entertainment when I’m looking to kill some time goofing around or procrastinating.

What I don’t understand, however, is the need some users feel to make so many aspects of their lives public. I don’t understand the fascination with broadcasting your every move. I’ve seen many instances in which people post their complete daily schedules including exact times and locations. There is an actual application that not only shares the name of the place you’re at, but also its address and get this: a MAP with an arrow pointing out right where you are.

What does the average college student’s day consist of? Sleeping, eating, working, eating, studying, and maybe even eating some more while studying. While this may not be true for all college students, there is one commonality for all students and that is FOOD. This is where Penn State Wilkes-Barre’s Food Services comes in to help. The campus food service is located in a place where students can relax, study, and of course eat.

Penn State Wilkes-Barre’s Food Service

REVOLUTION UPON US!

F O O D
FIGHT

Brieana Mitchell Cooks Up Controversy in the Cafeteria

See Facebook, Page 2

See Food Fight, Page 2

ANIMAL LIBERATION
OR HUMAN
EXPLOITATION?
PETA CROSSES THE LINE

CALL YOUR LAWYER!
THE BASKETBALL TEAM TAKES YOU TO COURT!

JUST DANCE
(GONNA BE OK)
THON 2010

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS
A Q&A WITH THE CHANCELLOR

PAGE 3
PAGE 4
PAGE 2
AND OH SO MUCH MORE...
FOOD FIGHT
Continued from Cover

vices is one of a kind. With its kind and quirky staff and rather original daily specials, our campus' Food Services may just be the most popular location on campus daily at 12pm. However, many questions arise to our Food Services limitations. While the lines of open-ended questions to stretch outside of the cafeteria, some of the campus population gripe that our Food Services could do better as far as menu choice is concerned. But who chooses the menu? Are the wonderful ladies on staff in control of which food items go onto the menu here at Penn State Wilkes-Barre?

Yes. Maria Stuppino, Head Food Service Leader at Penn State Wilkes-Barre, puts the menu together, orders which items we have available to us, and observes the other women in the cafeteria daily. When asked about some of the menu restrictions, Stuppino stated, “I make the final decisions as far as what is put out. Though I do have a supervisor, I have free reign.” Along with these tasks, the Food Services Department caters for special events on campus (i.e., Open Houses) and attends food shows in order to get new ideas for daily specials.

F a c e b o o k
Continued from Cover

I don’t understand documenting every trivial get together with incessant, repetitive pictures. Pictures can be very personal and may be embarrassing and people don’t acknowledge that memories fade but pictures can last forever. I don’t understand posting the intimate details of your relationships with so and so, or your deepest thoughts about such and such.

This all baffles me on a daily basis, and I am not even a very private person myself. I will openly share, granted there must be an appropriate time, place, and audience of which I’m aware. I think this is what so many young people are not grasping. Combine today’s web-obsessed world where virtually everyone is logged online, with the modern simplicity of spreading information, and you have the strong possibility of certain people having access to details of your life that you just might not want them to have. Or, you’re so vain and naive that you do want all sorts of people knowing all sorts of things. Either scenario is pretty disturbing.

This drastic over-sharing is not merely creepy and annoying, but also potentially dangerous. I’d like to suggest everyone take a look at the website www. pleasurable.com, created to raise awareness about the negatives associated with voluntarily giving up your privacy, complete with true stories.

My advice would be this: before you’re about to go on a sharing spree about your life tons of “friends” online, ask yourself “Is this something I’m comfortable with just anybody knowing and/or seeing?” and “Does anybody really give a crap?”

Jennifer Shabilla
JL5555@psu.edu

Sounds pretty good, right? A very loose survey was given about the food on campus, and some students feel that the cafeteria definitely needs more variety in what is served. “The wraps are awesome. But I get tired of eating them. I can’t eat them every day,” says Gencina Ricca. When asked what he would improve about the food on campus, freshman basketball player Shawn Washington simply stated, “More choices.”

This lack of variety is a very fixable “problem.” But is this lack of choices due to the size of our campus, or from the number of students who love the fried foods and sandwich wraps available to us? Stuppino stated, “We have what the kids want. And when I go back and look at the receipts from sales, fried foods are the highest every time.”

In comparison to other campuses in the Northeast vicinity, the lack of variety isn’t much to complain about. The prices of food on campus are actually lower than other campuses, despite the recent hike in price taken place this year. Stuppino stated that the daily specials (accompanied with a small drink) are mostly home-made, adding a bit of personality to the kitchen. Also, many of the students here seem to be attracted to the decor of the cafeteria. When asked what his favorite thing about the cafeteria is, freshman Colin Nurse stated, “I really like the chairs. They’re comfortable. I like to sit in the cafeteria even when I’m not eating.” Stuppino also told us that cleanliness is one of their goals each and every day.

When asked what further improvement may be made over time, Stuppino replied, “We’re going to try to man the Cyber Cafe a bit better. We’re actually a bit understaffed so we will try the best we can. And we always accept suggestions.” That sounds like an invitation to the campus to ask and help with change, if that’s what we want.

Brieana Mitchell
BSM5978@psu.edu

FACEBOOK

Old boy in the neighborhood

Lives upstairs and it is understood
He’s there just to take good care of me
He’s like one of the family

Do you like your job?

I love my job. It’s always challenging, just when you think you have one thing finished something else always comes along.

How did you get into this career?

I started teaching when I was in the army. We were short handed and I had to teach people how to do things. After completing my undergraduate degree I continued as a teacher’s assistant while working towards a D.B.A. (Doctorate Business Administration). I moved up through the traditional ranks, and while I was an endowed chair I was selected as the Dean for the Business School in Fayetteville, North Carolina. I remained in that position for about 13 years and began looking for jobs as president/chancellor. There was an open position on this campus and was hired.

What are some of your hobbies?

I like to bowl. I don’t have a lot of time for hobbies. When I do have the time I love to do wood working, and handyman kind of things around the house. I also love to jog and lift weights. My favorite thing to do is to go for a run early in the morning while the sun is still coming up. But I really like bowling. I’m also active in my church, Orange Methodist Church. I helped start the men’s ministry, and sometimes they let me speak.

What kind of music do you listen to?

I listen to about three radio stations Jr. Country 93.7, Soft Rock 92.9, and oldies on GEM 104. I like all kinds of music, but these are the top three stations I listen to while in my car.

Gencina Ricca Probes Chancellor Davis

S t h i n g s  e l s e  y o u  m a y  n o t  k n o w a b o u t  o u r  C h a n c e l l o r :  H e  b e g a n  h i s college career at the University of Tennessee and fai led out his freshman year. He re-enrolled into school. During his junior year, while the war in Vietnam was progressing, he was drafted into the army. Instead of following through with the drafting process he decided to join.
DeVil’s Advocate

No one on THE REVOLT staff is sure how PETA was brought up in conversation at one of our maiden meetings. Nevertheless, we found ourselves enthralled in a conversation about fur, the animals that have it, the people that wear it, and the organization that condemns it.

People for the Ethical treatment of Animals (PETA) is no stranger to controversy as it rabidly laces out against anyone (and I mean anyone) who has a slightly different view point than they do. As I discovered by simply scratching the surface of the largest animal rights organization in the world, you think you know, but you have no idea the below-the-belt methods P.E.T.A. employs to carry out its mission of “total animal liberation.”

The slightest mention of animal cruelty conteats even the most im- mobile of faces into a narrow-eyed scowl, but before we start throwing blood on people who wear fur (like PETA has been doing since the 80s) let’s take a peek in our own closets. Chances are some of your shoes, purses, jackets, wallets, and belts once had fur attached to them and in PETA’s eyes – you have blood on your hands.

In fact, PETA may take issue with you even if you do not wear leather or fur products. If you have eaten meat recently, gone to a zoo, supported the March of Dimes or the American Cancer Society, read Vogue, gone fishing, or bought anything at McDonalds, you’re practically Cruella’s kin.

In case you ever find yourself in PETA’s firing line, be very afraid. PETA.org and its affiliated PETA2. com takes low blows at everyone who dare to disagree with their extremist plot against consumers.

The website deems Aretha Franklin, Kate Hudson, and Catherine Zeta-Jones (among many others) “fur hags” and Lindsay Lohan is a “twit” even after she explained to PETA that a coat she was photographed in was faux fur. The Olsen twins have an entire section dedicated to them complete with gaunt, emaciated caricatures of the girls (a little tasteless as Mary-Kate sought treatment for an eating disorder in 2004).

Perhaps PETA’s most tattered target is Vogue Editor and Chief, Anna Wintour. By refusing to bow to PETA and stifle designers by outlawing fur in the iconic magazine, Wintour has been brutally attacked.

It’s no wonder some celebrities are so willing to shed their clothes in the nude.

Student Status

When Passion turns Extreme, Does PETA practice what it preaches? Aaron Bomba Ruffles Feathers

GET DRUNK!

Jennifer Shubilla Raises her glass in a toast to the repeal of Prohibition

If you’re like many typical college students, you don’t really need an excuse to throw a party. Take me for example; I latched onto every holiday, anniversary, and custom regardless of religion, race, or culture just because it’s a well known fact that I enjoy a good celebration.

When there’s a legitimate reason to spread good cheer and drink good beer, I probably know about it. If you’re on the lookout for a reason to raise your glass for a toast this spring, and Mardi gras, St. Patrick’s Day, or Easter just aren’t doing it for you, look no further.

Although the 21st amendment, which repealed the 18th amendment (prohibition of alcohol) was formally ratified on December 5th, 1933; the date April 7th is still very significant for breweries and beer drinkers alike. It was on this day 77 years ago that it became once again legal to produce, distribute, and sell beer.

This year April 7th is a Wednesday, and it’s as good a day as any to commemorate. So, if you are so inclined, perhaps you want to raise a glass to the repeal of prohibition.

Part Time Paycheck Full Time Lifestyle

Richard Smith Details the Perks of Student Status

While most of us are living the low life, local entrepreneurs are willing to cut students a break and increase business by offering us students discounts within the area.

For starters, one of the largest problems a commuter student will encounter in this area is the ultimate question; “What is there to do around here?” Although this area has many unique leisurely activities to offer, they are not always the cheapest in price. Here’s a few ways to have a good time with cents on the dollar.

The Wilkes-Barre Scranton Penguins have been struggling this season to reach playoff berth, and the box office has been struggling to fill seats within the stands. Currently, the Penguins are offering tickets to students on the day of the game for $12.50 in the stands, and these seats range through- out most of the arena. Last time I went to the Mohegan Sun Arena I was able to sit three rows directly behind the net of John Curry for half the price of the retail ticket price.

Many tourists also view the area as a place for tourism in the winter for skiing and snowboarding. Although it is a stretch to consider places like Jack Frost/Big Boulder and Sno Mountain as “resorts of the Poconos” it does not stop blue jean clad out-of-staters from visiting. Sno Mountain of Moosic is willing to chop off as little as $6 and as much as $15 student lift tickets. They are offering us the same discount as a child or senior citizen would receive. Jack Frost and Big Boulder also offer discounts, as well as boasting of having one of the top five terrain parks on the east coast two years in a row! The discounts at Jack Frost aren’t nearly as appealing as Sno Mountain or Boulder, but Boulder offers $15 student discount lift tickets every Wednesday night from 3:00pm until close. On top of that, Big Boulder also offers discount equipment rental on these nights. This is a great way to try a new hobby without having to overpay on equipment rental or shell out a few hundred dollars by buying your own equipment.

Penn State Wilkes-Barre is also proud to be a part of the annual Party on the Square in downtown Wilkes-Barre. Although our school typically has the least amount of students present at the event, that does not change the benefits that a student receives for attending. Upon registration, a student will receive a student discount card good at several local businesses.

Didn’t go last year? That’s okay because for many of the discounts you don’t even need the card! Chacko’s Bowling Center offers $2.50 games and free shoe rental with the presentation of a student ID. Mark’s tattooing offers 10% off of all tattoos as well as $5 off piercings and 570 Tattooing Co. is attempting to compete with 10% off of all services. Manual Fats Rock and Roll Bar offers free cover every night for students, even on event nights. Top of the Slope offers a 10% discount as well. More benefits are available with the actual student discount card, but new ones will not be dis- tributed until the next party on the square at the beginning of next semester. For more information on student discounts and Party on the Square keep posted and keep reading THE REVOLT!

Richard Smith

See Drunk, Page 6

See PETA, Page 6
Cait Akins Finally Sits Down with Amy Parry, After 46 Hours Strong

Q: How long have you been involved in THON?
A: This will be my fourth year volunteering with THON, my third year actually on a committee. I’ve been on an Operations committee, a Hospitality committee, and this year I danced for our campus.

Q: What was your first reaction when you found out you were a dancer?
A: I was pretty shocked and in disbelief. I honestly didn’t think I was going to get the vote. After that I was really excited and incredibly honored. I’ve been working really hard and waiting for years for my opportunity to dance.

Q: What was the most difficult part of being a dancer “on the floor”?
A: The down time. Whenever I had someone/something keeping my attention and keeping me moving I was perfect, but whenever things started getting slow I could really notice just how awful my feet and legs hurt.

Q: Did you have a motivation throughout the 46 hours?
A: I would like to think everyone involved in THON has the same motivation. Seeing how happy and amazing and incredibly talented these kids are blows me away year after year. Usually I see it from a spectator’s perspective but being on the floor with the kids the entire weekend was an incredible experience and they definitely helped keep me going. Not sitting for 46 hours is the least I can do for the kids.

Q: Most rewarding moment?
A: I was wandering around the floor with my morale person just to keep my feet moving, and out of nowhere this real small little boy barrels around me and steals my bubbles.

Q: What was the most difficult part of THON?
A: People think that THON is physically demanding and that it takes a toll on your body, it does, however THON is more a mental game than anything, it is all a frame of mind. The hardest part for me was when people would slip and tell me what time it was, sometimes that was really demoralizing, but then in an hour or two I lost track of what time it was and I was back to normal.

Q: When you were on the floor through the 46 hours what would you say was your favorite thing to do?
A: The color wars events! Where else can I win 200 dollars in the cash cab, or learn to salsa dance?

Q: What made you keep going?
A: The people in the stands. The energy around me and steals my bubbles.

Q: When you found out you were a dancer what was your reaction?
A: When I found out that I was dancing in THON, I was extremely overwhelmed. I never thought that I would have enough votes, and I’ve never been more honored. But after the meeting, as I was walking to my car, I thought to myself: “What am I getting myself into?” I had no idea of the adventure ahead of me.

Q: What was the most rewarding moment?
A: I got involved in THON my sophomore year, right after Haunted Forest. More specifically, I was in COMM 100 with Mr. Bachman and a student did a speech on THON, and I thought that was pretty interesting and I thought I would see what it was all about. I haven’t stopped since.

Q: When you were on the floor through the 46 hours what would you say was your favorite thing to do?
A: The color wars events! Where else can I win 200 dollars in the cash cab, or learn to salsa dance?

Q: What was the most difficult part of THON?
A: People think that THON is physically demanding and that it takes a toll on your body, it does, however THON is more a mental game than anything, it is all a frame of mind. The hardest part for me was when people would slip and tell me what time it was, sometimes that was really demoralizing, but then in an hour or two I lost track of what time it was and I was back to normal.

Q: When you were on the floor through the 46 hours what would you say was your favorite thing to do?
A: The color wars events! Where else can I win 200 dollars in the cash cab, or learn to salsa dance?

Q: What made you keep going?
A: The people in the stands. The energy around me and steals my bubbles.

Q: Most rewarding moment?
A: I was wandering around the floor with my morale person just to keep my feet moving, and out of nowhere this real small little boy barrels around me and steals my bubbles.

Q: What was the most difficult part of THON?
A: People think that THON is physically demanding and that it takes a toll on your body, it does, however THON is more a mental game than anything, it is all a frame of mind. The hardest part for me was when people would slip and tell me what time it was, sometimes that was really demoralizing, but then in an hour or two I lost track of what time it was and I was back to normal.

Q: When you were on the floor through the 46 hours what would you say was your favorite thing to do?
A: The color wars events! Where else can I win 200 dollars in the cash cab, or learn to salsa dance?

Q: What made you keep going?
A: The people in the stands. The energy around me and steals my bubbles.

Q: Most rewarding moment?
A: I was wandering around the floor with my morale person just to keep my feet moving, and out of nowhere this real small little boy barrels around me and steals my bubbles.

Q: What was the most difficult part of THON?
A: People think that THON is physically demanding and that it takes a toll on your body, it does, however THON is more a mental game than anything, it is all a frame of mind. The hardest part for me was when people would slip and tell me what time it was, sometimes that was really demoralizing, but then in an hour or two I lost track of what time it was and I was back to normal.

Q: When you were on the floor through the 46 hours what would you say was your favorite thing to do?
A: The color wars events! Where else can I win 200 dollars in the cash cab, or learn to salsa dance?

Q: What made you keep going?
A: The people in the stands. The energy around me and steals my bubbles.
The Penn State Wilkes-Barre men's basketball team has been undervisely pushed to the side by local newspapers. (Thank god for THE REVOLT!) While the local media was busy covering average squads such as Kings (12-14), Wilkes (13-12), and Misericordia (16-11), a quiet storm was developing on our own campus. The Mountain Lions finished 9-6 in the country, among USCAA-conference teams, and made a serious push for the national championship.

Along the way, the team realized strengths and weaknesses on which they had to build. The peak of their success seemed to come on November 28, at home, when they trounced Johnson Community College by the score of 108-41. Shortly thereafter, the Mountain Lions faced two tough opponents: a pair of Division 2 NCAA teams. First was Bloomsburg, then East Stroudsburg. They lost both contests by hefty margins, but continued to play hard. For a young and largely inexperienced group of college students, what more can you ask?

Then, the Mountain Lions caught fire at just the right time. In the last ten games of the season, they finished up 7-3 and pushed their way to a playoff bid. Once they made the playoffs, the team would not settle for “just getting there” as good enough. Unfortunately, PSW-B lost, if only barely, their first game 73-68, but luckily this was a double-elimination tournament. Following the loss, the Mountain Lions took the court against Central Maine. In a nail-biter, the Mountain Lions pulled a victory out, behind the play of three-point specialist Colin Nurse, who scored a career-high 26 points. Following thriller after thriller, the close games continued when PSW-B defeated Penn State Beaver, 57-55. Unfortunately, the run stopped after that, when NHTI (New Hampshire Technical School) topped PSW-B 73-60, with Shawn Washington dropping 16 points in the losing effort. It was a great season regardless, filled with highlights and lowlights, with over a dozen players that gave it their all.

Coach Scott Minor led the group of men, none of which are seniors, with some looking forward to long, successful careers here at PSW-B. The most notable superstar of the team is sophomore, Frank Peters, who was good enough to make his way on to the honorable mention list of all-conference selectees. Gathering nearly 370 rebounds over the course of the season.

For the 2010 baseball season, the Penn State Wilkes-Barre Mountain Lions are not only making moves on, but off the field as well. With new manager Sean Foley at the helm, the team traveled down to Florida to play exhibition games during Spring Break.

As far as on the field, the team has gone through a tough stretch prior to opening day. While the team got closer during the trip down south, the overall play on the field was not, for lack of better words, good. Injuries hampered the team, limiting some of their top players to playing just a few innings – contributing to their error-filled performance.

When the squad arrived home, they had a pair of exhibition games to play against Kings College. They dropped both contests, but kept it close in the first game (losing 8-6) and Kyle Jola led the team with a moon shot of a home run.

The Mountain Lions reserve hope that 2010 is still a successful year, and all these exhibition games are just practice for regular season. Keep your eyes peeled for upcoming fundraisers that they will sponsor.

Matt Bufano
MY85162@psu.edu

Find out what it means to them! Matt Bufano reflects on an exciting season in Men’s Basketball
Olympics
Continued from Page 5
lightly. A budget of almost $13 Billion will be used to make the city ready, a large portion of that money being allocated to build some very impressive Olympic venues. The wave-like Aquatics Centre will serve to host all of the wet events, the Velodrome will hold the cycling and BMX events, and London's new crown jewel, The Olympic Stadium (with capacity for 80,000) will be the stage for the opening and closing ceremonies. If skipping over the pond for the London games seems like something you would like to do, check out london2012.com. Tickets for the events do not go on sale until next year but you can register with the site and have them keep you informed of when they do.

Drunk
Continued from Page 3
join me in toasting to this important victory in history. Also, to all you fellow revelers, look forward to other upcoming great moments in history to salute, because as Oprah Winfrey proclaims “The more you praise and celebrate your life, the more there is in life to celebrate.”

Jennifer Shabilla
JLS5355@psu.edu

PETA
Continued from Page 3
PETA’s “I’d rather go naked than wear fur” campaigns. It seems the only way to get the organization off your back is to align yourselves with it. Is bullying people into submission an acceptable way to further a cause?
We shouldn’t be surprised at PETA’s lack of compassion for human suffering, however, because the animal rights group seems to think they are above common decency, consumer freedom, the law, and as one anti-PETA organization charges, their own mission.
Petakillsanimals.com charges that “PETA’s ‘Animal Record’ report for 2009, filed with the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, shows that the animal rights group killed 97 percent of the dogs and cats in its care last year. During all of 2009, PETA found adoptive homes for just eight pets. Just eight animals- out of the 2,366 it took in.”
The site has ten years worth of official records from PETA available for download, which details the organizations lack of enthusiasm in actually practicing what they spend so much energy (and money) in preaching. PETA responded to the website by stating “We do not run a traditional shelter”.
Perhaps if PETA stopped fixating on celebrities and gross videos of animal slaughter, they could actually make progress in modernizing the industries that provide animal products. Fathoming to eliminate inhumane conditions for animals by trying to convert everyone into a vegan seems like a fantastic waste of time.
If we can learn anything from PETA it is this, never affiliate your self with an organization until you have researched it. When an organization deems someone a “hag,” there have been cases where people have been arrested while attempting to convert others into vegans. Joining him for All-America was Mike Buczkowski, who received Academic All-Americans honors.
Any good basketball team has several key role players, including shooters, hustlers, defensive specialists and leaders. Peters, John Sanderson, and Ryan Whitmiller were named the team co-captains. Sanderson, who is the only returning starter from the 2008/09 team. Sanderson and Peters are arguably the two best point threats on the team as well, with Sanderson’s “can’t miss” shot from the free throw line, and Peters’ ability to score in the paint.
Colin Nurse was another key element of the team with his hot three-point shooting, as he shot just a shade under 50% in the playoff tournament. One of the hardest-playing guys for the Mountain Lions was GAR alumni Rob Hadvance. Other local products were Jon Kelly of New York, and Ryan Whitmiller of Tunkhannock. Jared Jones is one of the most electrifying dunkers in the conference, showcasing the talent in the slam dunk contest where he finished second place.
Most of the conference found PSW-B’s success this past season to be quite the shock, but Coach Miner was not shocked. He knew from the beginning of the season that the team had a lot of unrealized potential waiting to bubble over. Miner told me, “We were picked 11th out of 16 in the conference (in the preseason coaches’ poll). I knew we had a chance to better, but not sure how much better.” Miner closed with, “We earned a lot of respect along the way, which is what I preached all year long. With the way that we played, we turned some heads and gained respect – that was one of our biggest goals this season.”

Penn State Wilkes-Barre Food Bank Extends Hours
Thanks to leadership from the Students for Justice Club, our campus now has a “food bank” where students who are having challenges making ends meet, can pick up nourishing items…such as soups; cereals; tuna fish; cereal; crackers, etc. Located in the Athletics & Recreation Building by the main sign-in desk, we are extending hours to Monday through Friday 8am to 4pm.
We appreciate the generosity of many employees who have donated either money or food items…if you are interested in helping this initiative, please contact either Bob Danko rud136@psu.edu, or Kathie Flanagan-Herstek, kh2@psu.edu.

LAN to Host Video Game Event
On April 24 the IST Club will be hosting a LAN party in the student commons, 2pm-11pm. If you’re into games like Call of Duty: Modern Warfare 2, Halo 3, Wii Sports, and other games found on Play Station 3, Xbox 360, Wii, etc; this is where you want to be. Don’t worry there will be plenty of food and prizes. Come on out and have some fun.

AID For AIDS AWARENESS WALK
If you or your club is looking to get involved in a community event, perhaps this is for you. The Wyoming Valley AIDS Council is looking to co-sponsor an AIDS awareness program, such as an AIDS Walk. This is an excellent way to promote your club as well as help a worthy cause. Confirmed HIV cases have been on the rise over the last few years in NEPA. There is a need for awareness throughout our community and together we can make it happen. If you or your club is interested in hosting or sponsoring an event, contact Bob Danko by email or phone: rud136@psu.edu - 570-606-7882.

JOB FAIR
Set For April 7th
On Wednesday, April 7, Penn State Wilkes-Barre will host a job fair from 10am-2pm in the gymnasium. This fair will not have rides, or games, or cotton candy but it will have jobs. Jobs are good to have, so go get one. Or try to, at least. Don’t try too hard, I don’t want you to take my job. But go. And try.
A SWELL PLAYLIST
Jennifer Shubilla - Uprising by Muse
Aaron Bomba - Suffer for Fashion by Of Montreal
Gencina Ricca - Bedrock by Lil Wayne (Ft. A bunch of people)

RICKY MARTIN IS GAY!
Gencina Ricca says Adiós to Her Chances with the Latin Heartthrob
The jig is up, ladies, the results are in, and our beloved, sexy Ricky Martin is officially batting for the other team. While female hearts are breaking all over the world, there are plenty of men out there rejoicing about the entertainer’s recent blog. Mr. Martin’s sexuality has been under speculation for years, but the rumors are now silenced. This may not surprise some of you, but I was one of those ladies thinking it couldn’t be true, but then again if I looked at the evidence in front of my face it was there all along. So as my chances with this gorgeous man slip away, I wipe the tears from my eyes and look to the future. Goodbye, Ricky, we’ll always be Livin La Vida Loco en mi corazón!

Coming Attractions

DATE NIGHT
OPENS 4/16/10
“The Out Of Towners” meets “Die Hard,” this comedic spousal adventure is all about reigniting marital passion, stole reservations, mistaken identities, and running for your life from mobsters throughout New York City. Just go see this movie, it looks like a good time.

WHY DID I GET MARRIED TOO?
In Theatres
Four couples get more than they bargain for on their trip to the Bahamas for their annual reunion. Relationships are tested, and passions ignite. Will the couples survive and make it home?

CLASH OF THE TITANS
In Theatres
This is a typical hero story about rescuing the damsel in distress and saving the day. Our hero in this story, Zeus’ son Perseus, slays Medusa, captures Pegasus, and rescues Princess Andromeda. This adventure-driven plot line will keep you on the edge of your seat.

DEATH AT A FUNERAL
OPENS 4/16/10
This isn’t your grandmother’s funeral! From a mis-directed corpse in the beginning of the movie, to a perfectly normal upstanding guy tripping on his girlfriend’s brother’s special “valium,” this movie is sure to keep you crying for more.

DATE NIGHT

WHY DID I GET MARRIED TOO?

CLASH OF THE TITANS

DEATH AT A FUNERAL

RICKY MARTIN IS GAY!
“The Revolt helped me lose THREE dress sizes!” - Hugh Jass

“Since advertising in The Revolt the IRS relieved me of $250,000 in back taxes” - Moe Kash

“My vegetables stay fresh for weeks ever since I advertised in The Revolt” - Brock Lee

“Placing an ad in The Revolt has helped my unsightly blemishes magically disappear” - Claire Skin